1. happened to be in the novena area and was a little lost on what to eat because i hardly ever come to this area.

was walking along and chanced on this place. it was just at a corner and sort of felt like makeshift (carved a space out for a cafe). i was attracted by the set menu which wasnt expensive (less than $20) came with drink (orange / lemon), main course (steak, chicken, fish & chips) and cake. also the decor sort of intrigued me, it felt like Harry Porter style, bookish, brawny as if you were dining in an old fashioned library.

i had the steak and orange juice, chocolate cake and extra added a coffee to go with my cake.

the steak was a good sized portion, done nicely with wedges and quite filling already. but as im always greedy, i had the warm chocolate cake. it was nice but it felt like it was nuked in the microwave 'cos it was warm outside and hot inside. it was nice with coffee though.

overall i had a nice dinner by myself and it was quite a quirky nerdy experience. service was OK, nothing especially good or bad, wouldnt mind going again to try the set dinner again. quite an enjoyable meal by myself.

Must tries: set meal
